Jenna is in the third grade and that means that she has to deal with homework, beating the boys at basketball during recess, and mean girls in her class. She cant wait for softball season to begin so she can spend lots of time at the ballpark. Jenna is very nervous the night she goes to the softball ranking session. She has some trouble catching the balls that are thrown to her, and she misses several of the balls that are hit to her. In the batting cage, she is a little freaked out by how fast the pitch crosses that plate. All-in-all, she is not very confident when she leaves. But no matter. Once practices start, Jenna knows that shell do better. She and her dad practice in the yard and at the first practice, Jenna. lets the ball roll between her legs into the outfield. Oh boy. She needs to spend some more time in the yard with her dad! Once the team starts playing real games, Jenna realizes that she has made a lot of progress but that she will have to continue to work hard throughout the season. It seems like she learns something new at every practice. Softball is harder than it looks! Join Jenna as she works hard on the softball field to become a better player and as she works hard in the classroom to be a better friend (and finish her group project). All of her experiences will teach her the real meaning of you cant judge a book by its cover. This item ships from multiple locations. Your book may arrive from Roseburg,OR, La Vergne,TN. Paperback.
